

Yankee Woman
Has Trouble

With Natives,
Tigers, Sons

By HAL BOYLE
Saigon, French Indo-China, (AP)—An American woman found house-keeping during the native rebellion pretty trying. And the outbreak by Annamese natives came after the former Irene Spangler, of Memphis, Tenn., already had had enough trouble with two growing boys, prowling tigers and rambunctious Japanese.

The tigers are out of the way now and the Japanese are under control, but she still has difficulty keeping her sons, Etienne, 12, and Francois, 11, both born in America, from joining up with French patrols, organized to help put down Indo-China's month-long native revolt.

"It's hard for me after all this upset life to remember the time when living was normal," she says.

She is tall and slim with hazel eyes, with the French mannerism of shrugging her shoulders, but her voice is still strictly Memphis.

Trouble With Japs
She was doing illustrating work for the Chicago Tribune in 1926 when she first met her husband, a French government official who died of meningitis in Bangkok, the Siamese capital, in January, 1942.

On the advice of friends she brought her boys to Dalat, about 70 miles north of here, to get them away from Allied bombings and to give them proper schooling.

Life was easy and pleasant there until last March, when the Japanese moved in.

"They barricaded all the roads and searched us as we walked to the markets," she recalled with a smile.

"There was great excitement for a moment when one of the Japanese guards who was searching my hand-bag found my lipstick. He thought it was a cartridge."

Risked Being Shot
"The Japanese let us stay in our homes but ordered us to leave the doors open at night. I lived in a villa by the edge of a forest in which there were tigers and leopards roaming about. So I didn't obey the orders. I risked being shot through the door rather than take the chance of having a tiger drop in some evening."

The worst of all for this lonely woman with her two children, however, was the fact that her servants turned against her after the Japs came.

"The houseboy wasn't so bad," she said, "but his wife became increasingly insolent and the night the Japs made us pack and leave for Saigon she stole everything she could from our luggage."

70 Miles On Cattle Car
The 70 mile trip was made by a cattle car, of which she has one harrowing memory. She and her sons stretched out and slept on the floor of the car and she woke up to find her feet were pressed against some hard objects. They turned out to be the ribs of a Japanese officer, also sleeping on the floor.

"He was very nice about it," she said, "he just rubbed his ribs and got up and moved away."

The Japs had concentrated the French in Saigon into a small zone, and she was lucky to find a hotel room. Then, on September 2, the Annamese rose and sacked 500 French homes in a single day.

"Japanese officers were behind the native gangs directing them," she said.

She is grateful for one small group of Americans who saved 400 French refugees from the Annamese mob by telling the besieging natives that they had bought the hotel and that it was American property.

4 Bits for Hotel
"I heard they actually gave the hotel owner four bits," she laughed.

Her greatest worry was that the natives would break into her hotel and find her money and jewels, including her wedding ring. The Annamese had robbed many of her friends.

She thought of hiding her valuables behind picture frames or tossing them into the chandelier. But when she heard that these were among the first places the natives searched. No place she thought of seemed safe. Finally her womanly intuition gave her the perfect answer.

"The Annamese love rice but won't touch oatmeal," she said, "so I wrapped my things up and stuck them into a box of oatmeal and left it standing plainly on the breakfast table."

FIND NO CLUE
IN DELPHEY'S
CREEK DEATH

State police reported no further developments today in their investigation of the cause of death of Charles Phylander Delphey, of near Aspers, and the manner in which his body came to be in "Possum creek where it was found last Thursday afternoon.

The officers have searched the creek from where the body was found just above the Biglerville-Heidersburg road to where it flows within a quarter mile of Delphey's home without uncovering any important clues.

They have not found Delphey's upper dental plate which was missing when he was found and have looked without success for a cap or hat they believe he probably was wearing when he left his home for the last time.

Delphey usually wore a cloth cap of the type often worn by railroaders.

Thorough searches of the Delphey property have failed to disclose anything that would indicate Delphey died from other than natural causes. The post-mortem examinations made of the badly decomposed body also did not indicate any signs of violent death.

Work of Child Welfare Unit Is Increasing

The marked increase in the volume of work handled by the Adams County Child Welfare Services in the last two years was indicated in a statistical report presented to the executive committee of the county Child Welfare unit here Tuesday evening by Mrs. Elizabeth Grieb, executive secretary.

In September, 1943, there were 54 children under the care of the county organization as compared with 81 last month. In the same period the number of children in foster homes increased from 35 to 51 and the number of foster homes in use mounted from 22 to 34. In the last year, 35 applications as foster homes were approved.

Mrs. Grieb reported that clothing costs for children under care are "well within the county budget figure for that purpose."

Cites Typical Month
Reporting on activities of her office during July, which was taken as a sample month, Mrs. Grieb said there were 10 office interviews, 51 visits to children in foster homes, five investigations of foster homes, 10 other field trips and six trips to the Child Guidance center at Harrisburg with children from the county in the 31-day period.

The executive group voted to donate children's books at the county office to the county library.

Members were reminded that the Christmas gift list will be presented at the November meeting and it was asked that groups expecting to help meet the Christmas needs of the children under care be prepared at the meeting on November 6 to tell how many gifts each will handle.

Early Record Of Christianity

Jerusalem, Oct. 2 (AP)—Archaeologists said today they had discovered the name of Jesus, carved before 70 A. D. and perhaps by an eye witness to the crucifixion, among inscriptions on 11 early Christian burial urns found in a cave on the Jerusalem-Bethlehem road.

The urns may provide the "oldest archaeological record of Christianity" and an historical confirmation of the trial and crucifixion of Christ, the archaeologists said. The inscriptions have not yet been translated fully.

Past Grands Hear Chaplain Tell Of Duties

An interesting report on the military duties of the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, Arendtsville, and his observation of life and conditions in Australia during foreign duty with the U. S. Army as an infantry officer and chaplain were given the Adams county Past Grands association at its October meeting here Tuesday evening.

Seventy members and guests of the association attended the meeting in the local IOOF hall following the weekly meeting of Gettys Lodge.

Former Chaplain Berkheimer told of his duties in supervising the distribution of supplies to Catholic, Protestant and Jewish chaplains in the Pacific. He told also of lodge organizations in Australia where he served for many months.

150th Session
The speaker told of the "don't care" attitude of Australian businessmen who are under close government control and of the poor rail transportation facilities with each state building roads of a special gauge necessitating freight shifts when state borders are crossed.

The Past Grands' meeting Tuesday was their 150th session. President Clair Pittenturf of York Springs presided. The singing of "America" opened the program.

The Rev. L. B. Hafer, Taneytown, gave the invocation. J. Frank Dougherty of Gettysburg gave the address of welcome which was responded to by Edward W. Wright, York Springs. Major Berkheimer was introduced by Past Grand Harold H. Reuning.

PATTON OUSTER RECEIVED WITH MIXED FEELING

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
General Two-gun Patton's transfer from command of his famous Third Army in occupation of Bavaria, is being received by the public at large with mixed feelings—relief mingled with regret that misfortune should befall a gallant soldier.

While no official reason has been given for placing the Bavarian administration in new hands, General Eisenhower's move follows Patton's recent statement to the press that some Nazis should remain in office for the sake of better administration this winter. This was contrary to Eisenhower's stand for elimination of all Nazis from office in accordance with the Big Three declaration of Potsdam.

Patton made a big mistake there, but in assaying his difficulties he shouldn't overlook another error by the outspoken general. When he compared "this Nazi thing" to the "Democratic and Republican fight back home" he uttered what he himself later admitted was an "unfortunate analogy."

Helps Nazi Cause
Now of course there are few who won't praise Patton's aim "to insure ourselves that women, children and old men will not perish from hunger or cold this winter." That surely represents the consensus of American military men in Germany, from Eisenhower down to the ranks, and it represents the sentiment of the folk back home. And we are mighty proud that this is so.

However, the Patton who thinks so fast and accurately on the battlefield erred in assuming that it was necessary or wise to keep Nazis in power to achieve this humanitarian goal. That is playing into the hands of Hitler's ghost—or mayhap the Fuehrer himself.

It would be disastrous if we overlooked that the Nazi underground and the Prussian militarists are busy trying to restore the Hitlerite structure. The easiest way to assist them in reestablishing their barbaric and militaristic Germany is to leave Nazis in positions of power to act as "fronts" for the underground. This has been so clear all along that the utter destruction of Nazism was made one of the chief Allied war objectives.

Must Be Tough
Another cardinal aim is to render the Reich militarily impotent by depriving it of heavy industries upon which war depends. Indeed there is a large school which holds that Germany must be reduced to an agricultural status, with only enough light industries to meet home consumption.

Unless the Allies are prepared to see their victory over the Axis nullified, they must get tough, and stay tough, with the Germans and the Japs. It shouldn't be such a terrible trial to be stern with people who, it has been testified at the Luebeck war crimes trial, gassed and burned 80,000 Jews to death in one night at the Belson concentration camp. Or with the Japanese who staged the death march of Bataan.

TRUCK BURNS AND UPSETS

Damage which may total $4,000 or more was caused Tuesday evening when a truck and trailer loaded with surplus government goods from Lett-Kennedy Ordnance Depot at Chambersburg caught fire, crashed and overturned on Mt. Newman as the driver and his helper leaped to safety.

State police here investigated and estimated damage by fire to the truck and semi-trailer at about $2,000. They said the cargo loss has not been estimated but may equal the other damage figure.

Joseph Gervasi, Philadelphia, the driver, and his helper leaped out of the truck cab when they discovered flames shooting up back of their cab as they began the descent of the east slope of Mt. Newman. Gervasi told police he looked back when he noticed his brakes were failing. Flames had burned through the brake liners.

After the two men left the truck, heading it into a roadside embankment, the vehicle overturned along the side of the highway and remained there until this morning when the badly burned machine was moved to the H and H machine shop here.

The flames were brought under control by the Cashtown fire company.

Gervasi said he was hauling auto parts from Chambersburg to two auto dealers in Philadelphia who had bought the load from the government's surplus stock at Lett-Kennedy.

The fire occurred about 5:45 o'clock.

HOUSE REDUCES INCOME LEVIES FOR INDIVIDUALS

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Congress appeared today to be going considerably beyond the administration's $5,000,000,000 tax cut recommendation.

In an expansive mood, the House Ways and Means Committee voted individuals a reduction next year of almost a half billion dollars more than Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson proposed.

And there were indications, as the committee turned to corporation taxes today, that it might go beyond repeal of the 95 per cent excess profits levy as Vinson suggested.

End Low Income Taxes
It was understood that Chairman Doughton, (D-N. C.), has asked his tax staff for figures on the effects of cuts in present corporation surtax rates. Vinson made no reference to these. He said repeal of the wartime excess profits levy would cut corporation tax bills by $2,550,000,000 next year.

The administration won one major point as the Ways and Means group voted to relieve 12,000,000 low income persons from income taxes after this year. But the committee brushed aside Vinson's proposal for outright repeal of the three per cent normal tax.

Instead, it adopted a Republican-sponsored compromise keeping the normal tax but on a more liberal basis of exemptions for dependents. This plan also reduces individual surtax rates by four percentage points in each of the graduated brackets.

Carlson Compromises
This would grant individual taxpayers—estimated to number 50,000,000 when the war ended—relief of about $2,500,000,000, against the $2,085,000,000 Vinson sought through simple repeal of the normal tax.

Rep. Carlson, (R-Kas.), author of the 1943 pay-as-you-go legislation, offered the compromise program. It was adopted as a substitute for a proposal by Rep. Robertson, (D-Va.) embodying the administration program and a Republican proposal for a flat 20 per cent cut for everyone.

The 12,000,000 persons subject to normal taxes pay only about $310,000,000 annually to the Treasury.

Under present law the three per cent normal tax is levied against net income over $5,000 regardless of the number of a taxpayer's dependents. The adopted Carlson plan stipulates that the surtax exemptions—$500 for the taxpayer and $500 for each dependent—be applied to the normal tax. Then, the surtax schedule would be reduced four points. This would mean that it would start at a 16 instead of 20 per cent assessment on the first $2,000 of taxable income after exemptions. Similarly, the next surtax bracket would be cut from 22 to 18 per cent, and so on up the scale.

JAP OVERSEAS TRADE CURBED BY M'ARTHUR

Tokyo, Oct. 3 (AP)—General MacArthur today restricted Japanese overseas financial and business communications to messages he has approved, and warned the Nipponese government to keep its hands off Korea—while threats of famine brought fresh troubles to the Japanese cabinet.

American officials today reported they were watching strictly the activities of more than 100 former secret patriotic societies of Japan and "all other subversive" groups. Authorities are particularly vigilant, they said, against any evidence that these groups might be going underground to continue rightist activities which were instrumental in whipping Japan into imperialism.

Sole Authority
The warning to Nippon to keep its hands completely off Korean government affairs followed purported "promotions" of Japanese officials or civil functionaries serving in southern Korea. "All such purported promotions are ineffective," Allied headquarters asserted, adding that its own military government is the sole authority in Korea.

The first report of a rice riot in northern Japan gave further warning of the approach of inevitable famine—and possible disorders—this winter.

Women by the thousands are writing Premier Prince Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni complaining they are having difficulty obtaining food. He has received as many as 1,000 letters in a day.

Some sources saw the possibility of Higashi-Kuni resigning in the face of growing criticism of the government's failure to formulate a concrete plan to relieve food, housing and fuel shortages. His cabinet may go with him.

The newspaper Mainichi speculated today that Foreign Minister Shigeru Yoshida, who last month replaced the surrender-signing Mamoru Shigemitsu, might be a choice for the premiership if Higashi-Kuni goes out.

FDR SON SAYS NOT OBLIGED TO PAY LOANS

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, in an interview published in the Los Angeles Times today, declared that he has no moral obligation to pay back loans made to him of $200,000 and $50,000 because the two men who made them did not choose to accept an offer for their settlement.

The son of the late President previously said that he borrowed a total of $600,000 and put it into the Texas State Radio network which he organized in 1938.

Regarding the loan of $200,000 from John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and $50,000 from David Baird, New York insurance broker, later settled for $4,000 and $500 respectively, Roosevelt told the Times reporter:

Offer Rejected
"I feel that I am under no moral obligation to pay back the money borrowed because I made both Hartford and Baird a firm offer, through Jesse Jones, to turn over all of my net assets including the stock which they held as collateral in connection with these loans. 'They chose not to accept the offer for their own reasons, of which reasons I was not advised. 'Bear in mind that these negotiations were carried on by Jesse Jones while I was overseas—in North Africa. The stock was returned to me. They knew and I knew at the time that the stock (of the radio network) had a zero value. 'This in any business man's language concluded a business deal. I made an offer. They declined it and worked out a counter settlement with Mr. Jones. That was early in 1942. 'At no time was I aware that the stock had any value other than zero from the time of the settlement with Hartford and Baird until May of 1945, at which date I did not own or control any of the stock."

MAAROONS HOPE TO SURPRISE HANOVER HIGH

While Gettysburg high school's football team is at the hands of Carlisle high Friday night in the opening game of the season would hardly hope for a victory over Hanover high here Friday night when the Maroons open their home season, there is little doubt the Maroons are optimistic concerning coming tilt.

The 26-0 reverse at the hands of Carlisle does not indicate the true comparative strength of the teams. The Maroons and Coach Ridinger's team showed their mettle only to some victims of fumbles. Had the Maroons been able to hold on to the lead the score might have been a lot different.

Coach Ridinger is working on new defensive and offensive tactics to use at the Nighthawks. Bolstering the center of the line is one of the room mentor's most pressing items at present.

Last Win in 1936
The Maroons, unbeaten by a Gettysburg team since 1936 and victorious seven encounters since that time, have not been too impressive in its two games. Like the Maroons, the Nighthawks lost heavily through out last year and now miss the help of their former top-flight players. However, Coach Reese knows no secret of the fact he and his charges are hopeful of being in the thick of the South Penn championship race, won jointly by Hanover and Chambersburg last year. The Nighthawks laced Delone 19-7 to 19-7 to open their season September 21 and followed this by a 6-0 decision over Lancaster. The high last Friday. Against Chambersburg Hanover was far off form, taking a scoring punch time and time after threatening throughout the game. The Reese-men edged 11 first downs while showing their defensive ability by holding their opponents without a 10-yard advance.

SERIES NOTES

By JERRY LISKA
Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—Tee shots the World Series:
The Tigers, to a man, faced rowdy without any false illusions. "I know he's tough, but we're hitting on Newhouse to be just little tougher," declared Roy Cullenbine. Hank Greenberg who clouted a homer off Borowy last July when the latter was still a Yankee, and the ex-American leaguer as one Cub pitcher who may bother the Tigers.

When the Cubs invaded their Detroit dressing room for the first time yesterday, Dizzy Trout, who probably will pitch the first game against the Bruins at Chicago next Saturday, trooped in as a one-man welcoming committee. The genial Ditz under between the disrobing the tossing hearty hand-shakes and there.

Tied to Rudy York's locker was a pup-colored cocker spaniel puppy, bought her yesterday, declared a brawny Tiger first sacker. "She say bring me luck and maybe she can't, but she's really a cute trick," the pup's name is Lassie.

Lefty Ray Prim, the Cubs' 38-year-old 13-game winner, pitched against the 14-year-old when both are rookies in the Piedmont league. "He used to hit home runs in, too," recounted silver-slatted Prim. "I don't remember whether I got any off me."

Outfielder Cullenbine was the star in Detroit's only batting practice yesterday, blasting a half dozen laces into the right field seats, and three went into the press box. Cullenbine suggested modestly.

Eddie Mayo, infield sparkplug of the Tigers, tossed off numerous congratulations on his selection by the Sporting News, baseball weekly, as the American league's most valuable player with the remark: "It's a great honor, but I'm embarrassed to win it with all these pros around."

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Minor league baseball men likely will be making a special effort to peddle players during the World Series before the market collapses. . . . With a lot of real big leaguers coming back from the armed forces, the major clubs will hesitate to buy or draft anyone who doesn't look like a real prospect.

Steamboat Used To Handle Detroit Fans

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—Some 1,000 red-hot baseball fans, sports writers and just plain tired businessmen took to the Detroit river today as this automotive center bulged at the seams while more and more world series enthusiasts poured into town.

The 1,000—representing a fraction of the overflow from the city's overburdened hotels and rooming houses—were lodged on a large Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company steamship, which was tied up at the foot of Wayne street, near the downtown area.

Today they're bringing in a smaller ship and that is sold out too. And do these 1,000 like it? Well, take the case of one man who came all the way from El Paso, Texas. "I don't like it at all. But it's better than sleeping on a park bench. But don't tell the boat people I said that. They might kick me out."

EXPECT RECORD DETROIT CROWD TO SEE OPENER

By SID FEDER
Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—If the weather man only cooperates, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs collide in newly-painted Briggs stadium today in the first game of the 1945 world series, before what is likely to be an all-time record Detroit baseball crowd.

With 5,000 standing room tickets to be added daily to the completely snapped-up 44,000 reserved seats and 10,000 bleacher benches in a penant-wacky city that takes its baseball as seriously as its automobile building, the chances are all in favor of a jam-packed turnout within shouting distance of the 60,000-mark. The last war-time ball clubs tangle at 1:30 p. m. Eastern standard time in the first peace time series which already reflects sports' expected golden post war comeback so brightly there's even talk of new financial marks in the books.

For instance, if this fall frolic should go the full derby distance of seven games, no one would be flabbergasted to see the customers kick in more than the $1,322,328.21 which made the Tigers-Reds 1940 "rassle" the richest of them all.

Lineups To Stand
There were no last minute changes in the lineup and batting order of either of the teams as they worked their way through over-loaded Detroit and headed for the ball orchard at Michigan and Trumbull avenues to pry the lid off the series that has its first three games here—today, tomorrow and Friday—then goes to Wrigley Field, Chicago to complete its run.

Lefty Hal Newhouse, the 25-game winner and most-feared flinger in the American league, goes to the post for the Tigers in the opener, a 5 to 7 favorite to come home a galloping. Opposing him, the Cubs called on Hank Borowy, the mild, likeable right-hander they bought from the Yanks as "pennant insurance" in mid-season.

With his ten triumphs as a Yank, before he was mysteriously given up, Hank is the only two-league 20-game winner since Iron Man Joe McGinnity turned the trick 43 years ago. Despite Newhouse's flashy form and load of "stuff," the Cubs figure Borowy can hang it to him, simply because he knows what the Detroit batters do not like, having won 11 and lost only three against the Bengals while in their league. And, as a social note he wouldn't be surprised if Mrs. Hank presents him with a new heir, while he's hurling the opener.

Tigers "Old" Club
Back of Newhouse is probably the most ancient ball club ever to work its way into the series, an all-over-30 lineup with right-fielder Roy Cullenbine the baby, at 30, and Doc Cramer, in center, the "grandpappy" at 39.

However, on the strength of Newhouse's swift salary wing plus a five-barreled batting "cannon" that can knock the roof in on enemy elbowers at any given moment, the Tigers are the betting choice to win their first world championship since they took these same clubs just ten years ago.

They are: Tackle Art Shires, formerly of the University of Tennessee and an army dischargee, and End Herschel Ramsey, one-time Texas Tech star who played three years with the Eagles before enlisting in the navy.

Harrisburg, Oct. 3 (AP)—Metro (Duke) Yurchak, right end at Nesquehoning high wonders if his jinx will ever permit him to score a touchdown. . . . In the West Hazleton game he picked up a fumble and scooted 40 yards for an apparent score. . . . But the officials called it back. . . . Against Blythe Township he snatched a 40-yard pass and raced across the goal-line.

But one of his teammates was offside and the score didn't count. Bob Clappier, star of the Pitts-ville high eleven raced for two touchdowns against Lansford, only to have both tossed out by officials. He's hoping his jinx departs also.

Use T formation
Enola will outweigh the Cannons by a substantial margin. The visitors, who employ the T-formation, lost to Carlisle 12-0 and scored a 19-12 victory over West York last Saturday.

A STAR IN DEFEAT

Allentown high has scored a total of 147 points in the last three games. . . . Which is not causing any cheers from 14 other members of the Big Fifteen. . . . The Allentown Morning Call said this about the game last week-end: "The Hazle Township eleven's whole attack was built around Jack Laputka, a back good enough to play on any high school team." . . . College scouts take note.

Wilksburg high, unbeaten in four games, boasts of one of the finest running backs in the west. . . . His name is Alex Jaffurs. . . . Does that sound familiar to college grid routers? . . . His brother was Johnny Jaffurs, one of the best that Penn State ever turned out.

Injured Boxer Dies; Manslaughter Charge

Seranton, Pa., Oct. 3 (AP)—Involuntary manslaughter charges have been filed against Andy Hetlin, 18-year-old Taylor (Pa.) middleweight boxer, following the death of his Monday night opponent, Johnny Dezinski, 32, of Plains, Pa.

Dr. Paul Kubaska, Lacka wanna county coroner, said Dezinski's head struck the ring floor after he was dropped by a punch less than a minute before the end of a four-round bout. He was taken to a hospital where he died several hours after the fight.

BIGLER ELEVEN HOST TO ENOLA THURSDAY NIGHT

Biglerville high school's football team will go after its second straight victory Thursday evening at 8 o'clock when it clashes with Enola high on the Biglerville grid-iron in a Lower Susquehanna conference game.

An even greater crowd than the one which saw the Cannons defeat Elizabethtown last Saturday night is expected. It was estimated 1,800 fans witnessed the opener.

Coach "Hen" Bream's lads came out of the Elizabethtown fracas in good condition with the exception of a few minor bruises. Dave Pitzer, burly fullback who sparked the Cannons to their victory in the last quarter when he carried the ball 15 straight times in the touchdown drive, at present is lame but expects to be able to fill in at his old spot and to give his usual fine performance.

Eddie Utz, halfback, who missed the opener due to illness, has resumed drills and his presence will enable the Biglerville eleven to show a more diversified attack.

See Upsurge In Baseball In 1946

Detroit, Dec. 3 (AP)—Baseball in general is in for a big upsurge in 1946. The Moguls are getting ready for it in meetings while the Cubs and the Tigers await the first pitch in the world series.

Just like a big oak grows from a little acorn, the quality of major league ball depends entirely upon the production of talent in the minor leagues. A minimum of 22 minor league loops are scheduled to start the 1946 season. That's ten more than operated this year. Forty one leagues operated before Pearl Harbor.

Art Ehlers, minor league promotional director, said today that with the possibility Selective Service and drafting of youngsters may continue indefinitely, it might take five years or more before there are at least 41 leagues again.

He had met with the heads of 10 major league farm systems in the afternoon. Major league representatives promised to be good big brothers, and Ehler said the atmosphere of the meeting indicated smoother relations between major league interests in the smaller circuits.

The Japanese farm unit averages 2.7 acres.

SAVED BY TOUCHDOWN

Moscow, Idaho, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Rev. Ray Clark will have to pump gas for Reggie McKarcher, Pullman service station operator, because the Washington State college football team defeated the University of Idaho.

But McKarcher had the worst case of jitters during the game. If Washington State had lost he would have had to deliver a sermon from Rev. Clark's pulpit.

Just Folks

"I WILL"

Some other boy, with a level head
And a pair of arms and pair of eyes
And a grin like yours, and a similar tread,
Out of his group has managed to rise.
And, the price he paid for his strength and skill
Was the courage to think and to say: "I will!"

No better, no more were his gifts than those
Which you, for your future, today possess.
With the same equipment as yours he rose
And earned his right to the word: Success.
But, he paid this for the post he'd fill:
The courage to think and to say: "I will!"

So up and at it and work away
And never give in to the timid thought
That you have been fashioned of weaker clay.
All that God gives to a man you brought.
You can climb to the top of the steepest hill
With the courage to think and to say: "I will!"

Today's Talk

DIVERSION TIDES

I suppose that there are a few—perhaps many—who wish to remain in about the same mould all through life. But such people have to be content with letting the world go right by their doors.

Changing things around every once in a while is one of the finest occupations. It also provides diversion, removes a number of superfluous wrinkles from the face, gives quickness to the step, and aids digestion!

The traveler is usually a person of quite some distinction. Seeing so much that is important, he doesn't have much time to grow conceited. The enlarged world increases his horizon. Just so with that one who meets many people of all sorts and who welcomes their ideas and conversation. All the time he is remodelling his own mind and putting it in tune with the times, and with all history.

Everyone in a household takes upon oneself new life and interest when the old structure gives way to the new. An associate in college once told me that a certain book had changed his entire course of his life. It remodelled his mind.

A friend of mine took his first real vacation in a long, long time. He told me that for days he didn't know what to do with himself. He was like the fish out of water. But soon he took on new interests and diversions. He got as far away from his usual life as he could. Six weeks later he returned to his home and to business. His very thoughts had changed. His friends hardly knew him. He even remarked that he hardly knew himself!

I like to study those pictures in the home magazines showing how an old barn or house has been remodelled and put to new use. They prove what a little change and a little thought will do when put right to work.

Life is too interesting a proposition to waste in too much sleep, with no changing tides of diversion to give it color!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Cementing Friendship"

The priest has been ordered to Shamokin to become pastor of St. Joseph's church and left Gettysburg on Saturday. His successor is Rev. P. F. Sullivan, former pastor at Buchanan Valley. He comes here from Shamokin. The change was ordered by Bishop Philip R. McDevitt, of the Harrisburg diocese.

It is said the plant will be ready for operation within the next few months.

Would Exclude the Jap: (By Associated Press), Cleveland, Sept. 29.—The report of the committee on Americanization of the American Legion in second annual convention here today recommended the cancellation of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan, exclusion of picture brides and a vigorous exclusion of Japanese as immigrants.

The report recommended that "we enter a vigorous protest against the demands of Japan that naturalization rights be granted to its nationals now in the United States and we earnestly request the State Department of the United States in its settlement of this question not to consider any proposition which would grant rights of naturalization to this unassimilable people."

Personal: Fred Faber, Wilmington, Del., is spending his vacation with Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Faber, of Chambersburg street.

Miss Elizabeth Evans, of Buford avenue, left Wednesday for Beechwood school, Jenkintown.

Edmund Thomas, of Broadway, is spending several days in Reading.

JAPS CONTINUE MILITARY WORK IN KID SCHOOL

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

Nikko, Japan, Oct. 3 (AP)—Japan's surrender and stated willingness to weed militarism out of education outwardly haven't affected the nation's No. 1 school for boys.

The School for Peers, where Japan trains princes and future leaders, still stresses Bushido in spirit if not in military subjects.

To an American observer the school has a distinct military air from the instruction to the way the boys march, bow and salute.

Both the emperor's sons—Crown Prince Akihito, 11, and Prince Masahito, 9, are students at the Nikko school, which is controlled not by education ministry but by the ministry of the imperial household. Akihito is in the sixth grade and is described by instructors as "an especially good student." Masahito is in the fourth grade.

Fencing Lesson

A saber-carrying officer looks out for the princes while they attend the day-long classes in the hotel. They are returned to the nearby summer palace in a Packard limousine. The other boys, numbering 143, occupy the Kanaya quarters. There are 450 in the upper classes.

I saw the boys gather in the hotel courtyard today for the fencing lesson. They were wearing mustard colored uniforms and were carrying bamboo swords.

One boy stepped forward. "Klotsuke," he commanded shrilly.

The boys came to attention. "Keirei," he said.

They bowed to the instructor, then marched off in a column of fours with the swords on their shoulders like rifles.

At the Nikko public school the ceremony of bowing was repeated. In the hall the boys seated themselves and put on body protectors. At a command they got up and bowed to an image of the emperor and to each other.

Ask War Questions

The dueling exercise followed. The boys, 8 to 14 years old, struck at their opponents vigorously. After a while they donned head masks and started clouting each other on the head.

The fencing lesson is given twice weekly. It formerly imparted the Bushido warrior spirit to the boys, one instructor explained, but now it is strictly to train the body and the mind.

The students, representing Japan's wealth as well as royal blood, include the son of the late Admiral Yamamoto, the son of one of the bankers Yasuda—there are half a dozen in the Japanese who's two—boys related to the imperial family, and the son of Professor Ishikawa of the Tokyo Imperial University.

The other day an American officer spoke to one of the classes in Japanese. His subject was holidays in America. When he finished, the boys overwhelmed him with questions far removed from Christmas or the Fourth of July.

"What does the B-29 look like inside?"

"What are your latest weapons?"

"How about your tanks?"

JAPANESE QUIT BALLOON BOMB; NO PUBLICITY

Tokyo, Oct. 3 (AP)—Japan's expensive V-1 weapon—bomb-laden paper balloon—intended as retaliation against the Doolittle raid on Tokyo, were abandoned because neither the Japanese nor the American people seemed to pay any attention to them.

This explanation was given in an interview by the staff officers technical section, Japanese headquarters.

Nine thousand balloons were launched from three sites near Tokyo before the experiment was abandoned on April 20, 1945—almost three years to the day from the Doolittle carrier-borne raid. Doolittle's surprise strike had so angered Tokyo militarists that they resolved to "make our own V-1," the technical section explained.

It took more than two years to complete experimentation, before the first balloon was launched, and cost more than 9,000,000 yen (more than $2,000,000 at pre-war exchange) to manufacture the strange weapon—but officers said they heard of only one landing in America.

Kept Secret Here

And that one, they added wryly, was reported to have been found, unexploded, in Wyoming.

Officers said they finally decided the weapon was worthless and the whole experiment useless, because they had repeatedly listened to the Chungking radio and had heard no further mention of the balloons.

(Actually, there were quite a number of the balloons reported found in America, but at the request of the War Department publicity was withheld. One of the bombs, found intact by a picnic party in Oregon, exploded and killed several persons.)

Grated carrots baked in muffins gives them a delicious flavor and helps keep them moist.

Chapter 25

In a flash, Cobo's irritation vanished. He motioned to the stenographer to continue taking her notes, then he said to Ramon in a level, non-committal voice:

"Good! You just the man we look for. You talk now please."

At that moment the telephone on Cobo's desk began to ring. The stenographer answered it and then handed the receiver to Cobo.

"For you, Chief."

Cobo listened in silence to the voice at the other end of the line. Then he said briefly:

"Yes, Dr. Waldo. Depend on me. I see it done. Muchas gracias."

"What did that medico want?" Ramon asked curiously. "He's been as busy as a bird dog since I came back from Miami. I haven't seen him for a second and tomorrow morning I've got to hold an inquest. Didn't he send me a message?"

"He not say. Personal call for me. Now we listen to you tell us who killed Potter."

Okay. Only I must tell it my way. You have to get a little of the background. It will take a few minutes. Do you mind?

Underneath his casual air of debonair assurance, Gardner detected a slight nervousness in Ramon's manner as if, now that he had started, the story he was to tell was not an easy one for him to go through with. However, he started out promptly enough.

"Dolores and Suzy Van Tyne were both in love with me," Gardner looked at his spectacles skeptically. Conceit like this was exactly what he had expected from the dancer, but he made no comment as Ramon continued.

"When Suzy began to come to the studio every day, Dolores began to make trouble. Dolores was a hot-head, and I finally had to tell her to lay off Suzy, or I'd fire her. But she kept calling her objectionable names and getting in her hair, until the Friday morning before the Fashion Show. Then she went too far."

"That morning in the studio she walked over to Suzy and slapped her face. Never in her life had a thing like that happened to Suzy Van Tyne and I must say I respect her for the way she took it," Ramon chuckled. "She was good. She swung back and gave Dolores a clip that almost put her out. She took all the starch out of her and she started to cry."

"In a second, Suzy was desperately sorry. You could see that. Later she and Dolores went off by themselves and Dolores told me Suzy apologized and told her how badly she felt over the whole affair. It was then she offered to pay Dolores' fare to New York City if she would go right away. Dolores said she would, and Suzy gave her a check for $200. Dolores opened a bank account with it the same day."

Ramon lighted a cigarette, gave it a few long drags, and continued with his story. "I only tell you this to show you that the two girls had reached the hair-pulling stage. Then Peabody came on the scene and things happened fast. Dolores was furiously jealous of me, but she saw a chance of getting more money from Suzy once she suspected that Peabody and Suzy were engaged. She evidently knew that before I did."

There was a bitterness back of that remark which did not escape Gardner's keen ear.

"I knew nothing of the money Suzy had given Dolores until she met me in the garden while the Fashion Show was going on. She told me then. We were just coming back to the hotel entrance, on Suzy's wing of the building, when we met Dolores coming off the runway. She blew up when she saw us together."

"Suzy made a dash for the stairs and Dolores started running ahead of her up the stairs to Suzy's room, where she was dressing that evening."

"What did Dolores tell Miss Van Tyne?" Gardner asked suddenly.

"How in Hell should I know? But whatever it was, it must have been pretty hard for Suzy to take because—because—" for an instant the dancer's voice faltered, and he looked down at the cigarette which he was slowly crumbling into a small pile of tobacco and bits of paper, "because Dolores was dead within 10 or 12 minutes. She was dead when we all met in the lobby to go on with our dance."

No one spoke for a few seconds, and then Cobo said in a quiet voice, "So that's the way it was."

"Yes," Ramon answered slowly. "Suzy strangled her in a fury over what she had told her. Did you ever see Miss Van Tyne's hands? They are as strong as any man's. The whole horrible business was over in a couple of minutes, Dr. Blair said."

"You've certainly given a clear picture of the events leading up to the tragedy," Gardner pushed his chair back and started pacing slowly up and down the office at the far end of Cobo's desk. "Only thing I can't quite see is a girl of Suzy Van Tyne's background and breeding strangling any one."

"Say, brother. You don't know girls as I do! When girls fight, they pull hair and tear clothes. Dolores' wedding dress was torn down the back, where Suzy ripped it as they were fighting together. The clothes fab with another doctor—about what—nothing! Holding medical consultations over a corpse is pretty silly in my opinion—especially for a man with your reputation."

Very deliberately, Gardner walked over to Ramon. He swung his hand out so swiftly the dancer had no time to dodge and caught him on the shoulder. With a strong heave, he dragged him to his feet and stared straight at him with his eyes only a few inches from Ramon's.

"Keep a civil tongue in your head," He spoke curtly, eyeing the man in front of him steadily. "Maybe you don't like my methods, but when I want your opinion of them, I'll ask for it."

"Aw, forget it," Ramon shrugged off the federal man's hand and turned away. "What's eating you, anyway? People around here are getting on each other's nerves. Jeez, I was just saying what I thought! This is a free country—why not—nothing to get sore about—"

"Potter had been dead at least nine hours when his body was found the next morning. That's all."

"Jesus y Maria," Cobo said, in a low voice, "I guess that is all." For a moment no one spoke or moved. Then Gardner turned abruptly to Cobo and said shortly:

"Now what, Chief?"

"This breaks the case," Cobo answered quickly. "It answers questions we did not know. You agree with me?"

"Perfectly. All that is left is the official windup."

Cobo motioned his stenographer that she was through. As the girl gathered up her pencils and notebooks, he straightened the papers on his desk, and said to Ramon:

"You are the coroner for these two murders and I will make an arrest this evening. It is important that you be present also."

"Oh, of course, Chief. I'll be there."

"Okay. When is Potter inquest?"

"Tomorrow at eleven. After you get through tonight, the inquest will not take long."

"That is right. Every one in Hale's office tonight at eight. Glad you came in, Ramon."

"Oh, that's all right. You know I'd help you any time, Chief. But the whole thing is a damn shame."

"And it's certainly going to be

Expense Allowance Declined By Four

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—At least four Congressmen who opposed House action giving each member a $2,500 yearly expense allowance have declined to take the money.

Three Republicans—Reps. Rees, of Kansas, Judd, of Minnesota, and Hoffman, of Michigan—and Rep. Weiss, (D.-Pa.), have refused to sign vouchers which would have given them $1,250 for the January to July period and have turned back monthly expense checks since then.

There possibly are others who are declining the expense allowance, but the office of sergeant-at-arms is not making public the list. Officials there said the records might not reflect the true situation because members a hard evening for you, Ramon," Cobo observed quietly, as he bent down and locked the top drawer of his desk. "I understand you in love with Miss Van Tyne."

"Yeah. That part isn't so good. I admit I fell pretty hard. But girls will be girls, and Suzy certainly turned out to be a honey, didn't she?"

"Yes, and then there was Dolores. It might be hard on you tonight, Ramon, because of Dolores also."

Gardner, who was at the door, turned with a slight frown on his face. Cobo was a funny little guy. He'd swear he had something back of all this—and then it came out!

"That's over now, Cobo," Ramon answered easily. "I just lost an assistant, that's all."

"No, that is not all," Cobo insisted softly. "It is always hard for any husband to face fact that wife was murdered. You were married Christmas day, Ramon. Dolores was your wife."

The engine and fireman, both of Buffalo, suffered minor injuries.

NEW SOIL LAW HAS WELFARE OF PUBLIC AS AIM

Promotion of the health, safety and general welfare of the public is a main objective of Pennsylvania's new Soil Conservation Law provided by the 1945 Legislature, according to Miles Horst, state Secretary of Agriculture and chairman of the State Soil Conservation Commission.

In the past few weeks Secretary Horst has met with groups of farmers and the boards of county commissioners of Crawford and Fulton counties where interest has been expressed in operation of the law and the possible establishment of soil conservation districts. At each meeting he stressed the "Declaration of Policy" contained in the act, which reads as follows:

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the Commonwealth to provide for the conservation of the soil and soil resources of this Commonwealth, and for the control and prevention of soil erosion, and thereby to preserve natural resources; assist in the control of floods; prevent impairment of dams and reservoirs; assist in maintaining the navigability of rivers and harbors; preserve wildlife; preserve the tax base; protect public lands; and protect and promote the health, safety and general welfare of the people of Commonwealth."

Erosion Control
The secretary explained that only favorable action by a board of county commissioners as required to establish a county-wide soil conservation district. Increasing interest is being shown in various other counties since the commission announced a few weeks ago that it would, on request, meet with farmers and county commissioners to explain operation of the 1945 act.

While an initial objective of county-wide soil conservation districts is to make possible the control of soil erosion in a county under an organized plan, Secretary Horst declared it was but one of many problems to be encountered in a broad conservation program designed to benefit not only farmers but all residents of a county, as indicated in the declaration of policy.

A district can cooperate with local communities in the development and maintenance of projects to safeguard local water supplies, assist on a community basis in the establishment of drainage projects, assist in the conservation of wild life, and to acquire title to abandoned lands and put them in line for proper use so that they will, at some future time, be an asset in maintaining a tax base for such counties, rather than continue as a liability. Many other activities of similar nature are possible under the 1945 conservation act, it was said.

CHERRY CROP
Latest estimates on cherry production in Pennsylvania for the 1945 season are given by the state Department of Agriculture as 3,800 tons, a small crop compared with the 11,200 tons harvested in 1944. The current year's production is only half the average of 7,600 tons for the 10-year period, 1934-43.

Avoid Accidents—Corn pickers cause 10 per cent of all farm accidents in Pennsylvania, and during the last three months of the year they cause one-fifth to one-third of all farm accidents for that period. Extension agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State college say not to work around moving parts and to use shields.

Cool Milk Properly—To maintain milk quality, hold the milk in insulated cooling tanks that are kept full of clean, pure, cold water, remind extension dairy specialists of the Pennsylvania State college. Air cooling is slow and promotes spoiling by bacteria.

Acquitted Of Child Theft, Released

Marion, O., Oct. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Phyllis Ann Webster, 30, acquitted of a charge of child theft on grounds of temporary insanity, was a free woman Tuesday, ready to join her soldier-husband at his post.

The pretty wife of Sgt. Ernest J. Webster was ordered released from jail by Judge Paul D. King who ruled she was sane after hearing testimony from five witnesses.

The woman was acquitted Thursday of snatching baby Jean Eileen Creviston from her hospital crib.

Plenty Of Turkeys For Coming Holidays

Plenty of home-grown turkeys for Pennsylvania Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners is assured this year according to a report today by the state department of Agriculture following an annual turkey population survey by the Federal-State crop reporting service which showed an all-time record total of 1,670,000 holiday dinner birds.

There are no government set-asides and all birds except those held back for breeding purposes will be available to civilian consumers, department officials declared. The 1945 Pennsylvania turkey production total is 386,000 birds or 30 per cent ahead of 1944.

This is the fourth straight year that the output has exceeded the million mark. The new record ranks Pennsylvania 8th among all turkey producing states, an advance from 9th last year.

URGES CARE IN BUYING FARMS

With the rapid rise in land prices in the last two years, even a seasoned farmer will want to investigate carefully the production capacity and income returns in relation to the purchase price of any farm before closing the deal. With present prices nearing land boom levels, many farms are bad buys and may become a debt burden, warns Earle Moffitt, extension farm management specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

However, he points out, real opportunities do exist in agriculture for those who know the science and skills of farming, particularly in Pennsylvania where such diversity in farming and crops exists.

The specialist cautions returning veterans and others thinking about "buying a farm" to consider the farm buildings, machinery, soils, crops, livestock, markets, credit, and general economic conditions before investing in a farm. "Farming is a long-time job and should be considered with a long-time point of view," he says.

To aid those seriously interested in buying a farm, as well as to protect those who may regret such investments, the Agricultural Extension Service has set up advisory committees in all counties where county agents are presently located.

Consulting these committees, comprised of farmers familiar with values, practices, and incomes from farms of the neighborhood, may

ASKS CHECK ON FIRE HAZARDS ON ALL FARMS

Pointing out that farm fires extracted a toll of 90 million dollars in property loss and 3,500 lives last year, J. R. Haswell, extension agricultural engineer at the Pennsylvania State college urges every farm family in the state to join in observing National Fire Prevention Week, October 7 to 13.

Increased mechanization of farms has increased fire hazards, he points out. Such hazards can be controlled only by use of fire-resistant materials, fire-safe construction, proper spacing of farm buildings, and "the application of more common sense."

With numerous farmers planning to remodel or construct new farm homes and buildings, the engineer stressed the importance of fire safety. Fully 50 per cent of rural fire losses can be attributed to faulty construction, he said.

Factors to consider in buildings, he says, are: Proper heating equipment with adequate safeguards; use of fire-resistant roofing against windblown sparks, safe and adequate electrical wiring systems to meet loads needed on modern farms; sound chimney and flue construction; and properly grounded lightning rods on principal farm buildings.

Fire Prevention Week is a good time to inspect the entire farm premises and remove hazards, Haswell suggests. At the same time he urged such fire protection measures as farm ponds, hand extinguishers, ladders conveniently located, and contact with an organized fire department.

"There's no need to fight fire you prevent," he reminded.

Start Erosion Control—With the planting of winter wheat, some fields can be laid out in strips on the contour. This will give a start on this important work and next spring other strips can be started, Penn State extension agronomists point out.

avoid not only paying excessive prices for farms, but aid in getting a farm in operation, he reminds. These committees, having analyzed their own farm operations, are especially equipped to assist returning servicemen interested in agriculture. They can be reached through the county agent's office.

Apply DDT Properly—Farmers are urged to apply DDT properly if they expect to get good results in insect killing. Extension entomologists of the Pennsylvania State college report the effective spraying of 125 dairy barns in extension demonstrations this summer. All DDT used in these operations was the water-dispersible type.

Cut Cull Trees—Proper culling of the farm woodlot provides double benefits, according to extension foresters of the Pennsylvania State college. When the poor trees are removed, more space is kept for growth of straight, tall, thrifty trees. At the same time the cull wood can be converted into a cash crop.

Control Soil Erosion—Good soil management involves improving the soil and holding it in place, remind extension agronomists of the Pennsylvania State college. Lime, fertilizer, and manure improve the fertility of the land, while contour strips will prevent erosion from carrying away the soil and its added fertility.

Prevent Cannibalism—Keeping the pullets comfortable and contented when first confined to laying quarters is one way to avoid cannibalism, point out poultry extension specialists of the Pennsylvania State college. Oats, green feed, or leafy hay in the ration also will help.

Potatoes for Cattle—When potatoes are fed to dairy cattle they should be cut or sliced and only 15 to 20 pounds per cow a day, say dairy specialists of the Pennsylvania State college.

Stop Garden Diseases—Vegetable plants carrying disease should be pulled and destroyed, or plowed under this fall, remind plant pathologists of the Pennsylvania State college.

Prevent Farm Fires—This is National Fire Prevention Week. Farmers are urged to clean up all fire hazards, check on the grounding of lightning rods, and eliminate careless practices. Farm fires last year claimed 3,500 lives and destroyed property worth $90,000,000. Fires are costly but most of them can be prevented.

Protect Poultry Ranges—Heavy pasturing of the poultry range too late in the fall may seriously damage the grass and legumes for next year. Poultry extension specialists of the Pennsylvania State college suggest that the mature pullets be housed so that the flock is gradually reduced, and wear and tear on the range are diminished.

Brief Facts About Mushrooms
Special, costly buildings are not necessary for growing mushrooms for home consumption. However, this crop is somewhat demanding in its particular requirements and beginners should remember the long-established rules of preparation, planting and care.

Darkness and controlled temperature and humidity are three essential factors in choosing a location for the mushroom bed. The room must be dark; the temperature should range close to 55 degrees throughout the bed's life. And ventilating equipment and growing practices should permit maintenance of suitable humidity at all times.

There is no substitute for fresh stable horse manure as a growing medium. This should be from grain-fed animals where stalls have been bedded with wheat straw. Wood shavings and sawdust bedding are wholly unsatisfactory. The manure should pass through decomposition and pre-heating, similar to that used in hotbeds. Manure ready for a mushroom bed is uniformly dark brown and moist throughout.

A cellar or basement without a heating unit in it is suitable for the bed, providing the temperature can be kept within the range recommended. No cold drafts should reach the bed during pre-planting or production stages.

Moist but not wet. Either extreme of moisture at this stage of growth or later in the production period imperils success. Mushrooms should begin to appear in six to eight weeks and a well cared-for bed should continue to produce fine mushrooms for three to five months. Good care in this sense means strict observance of temperature, bed moisture and air humidity. Mushrooms are alkaline in diets and make a fine addition to the late fall and winter menu. And while they do not rank high in mineral, food or vitamin values, they are delicious to supplement many meat dishes, stews and dressings. They should be considered among standard farm and home food crops.

"So I'm in business for myself!"

Shine, mister—?

Yep, I'm in business for myself. Not a very good business, I guess.

Funny. That used to be an old dream of mine—way back in 1945. A business of my own.

Never thought it would work out this way . . .

Shine, mister—?

Those were the days. I was making more money than ever in my life. And buying Victory Bonds on the Payroll plan—setting up the nest egg Mabel and I thought would someday help us toward independence.

Shine, mister—?

Yep. We had it figured out. We'd keep on buying bonds; keep on saving. And at the maturity of those bonds, we'd have had it all—and more. Four dollars for every three when our "E" bonds matured!

And then—my own radio repair place! Had lots of ideas. It would have been a big success, too . . .

Not quite enough gumption, I suppose, back in 1945. I sloughed off on my bond buying. Even began to cash in on the ones I had . . . Shucks, the war was over and I thought 'so what.'

Guess I've been a terrible fool . . . Shine, Mister—?

The difference between success and failure can be a small difference—the difference between sticking to a resolution or dropping it.

Keep those War Bonds—and buy more and more Victory Bonds! They can mean your own business—your own home—the education of your children. Think of your future—hang on to your bonds!
